Excellence with a Personal Touch

The CALL Program is designed for non-traditional adult learners with family, work or time commitments. CALL classes are offered in an accelerated online format to afford flexibility to students not able to attend on-campus classes. CALL courses are offered during two 8-week sessions within a regular semester. This allows students to earn credits each session during the semester while only having to concentrate on one or two classes at the same time. The online courses allow students to access class information and assignments when and where they choose.

Admission into CALL is reserved for adult learners who:

- Have been accepted to McNeese State University as a degree-seeking student
- Have accumulated at least 45 hours of transferable college-level credit from a regionally accredited institution
- Have been employed full-time for at least 3 years (or longer if part-time) or have earned an associate degree in any discipline

To apply for admission into the CALL Program, students should:

- Submit a Proof of Employment form
- Submit a Personal Statement—a written explanation of why you want to participate in CALL
- Submit a CALL Application (current McNeese students only)

McNeese and LSU-Eunice have established a 2+2 partnership for the CALL Criminal Justice program. Through the 2+2 partnership, LSU-E offers the first two years of the coursework required for the Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice degree; McNeese offers the subsequent two years of coursework. The partnership ensures that all coursework required for the degree is offered in an online, accelerated format. Students with less than 45 hours of transferable college credit can begin the first two years of the Criminal Justice degree online through LSU-E, earning an associate degree in the process. Once 45 hours of transferable college credit are earned, students may then begin taking coursework through McNeese's CALL program. For more information about the LSU-E CALL Program, contact 337-550-1307 or clearning@lsue.edu.
